

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation and an obvious abuse of power.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. A political ad is not serving the public interest or supporting our democracy.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard.
